MESSRS. BOOTH AND DAVIDSON are to be congratulated upon the excellent initial number of the fourth volume of The Educator—the word "silent," which was a part of the title previous to the transfer of the paper from Michigan to Philadelphia, has been dropped. The page dimensions are the same as formerly, but a decided improvement has been made in changing the number of columns in the page from three to two. The typography is very neat, and the printing clear and of a size that requires no straining of the optics to read. In their salutatory, the publishers express themselves as follow:

"Under its new editors, The Educator will have no policy, but a well defined purpose. It will aim to promote in every possible way the education of the deaf. It will seek to keep before teachers those principles upon which all true educational work is based, and to discover and make known the best methods through which these principles can be applied to the special needs of the class; to secure better service by educating those teachers now in the work, and by advocating the appointment of only competent men and women, and the payment of salaries that will attract and retain such persons in the profession. It will endeavor to bind together all of those interested in the uplifting of the deaf, that by concentration of effort the common end may be more quickly be attained. These things it hopes to accomplish, not of itself, but as the instrument of all earnest minds who care to use it for making their work known and their influence felt.

"The columns of the paper are open to all who have any message for the profession, any idea to broach, or any question to ask. The editors hold no method sacred from investigation and discussion. They have, however, certain restrictions to place upon contributors. There are no prophets in these days; Truth has her abode in the house of no particular man; one person's opinions are as good as another's; therefore, in a discussion opinions are valueless, and we ask instead for facts and arguments. Another thing is, we will insist that all parties to a debate shall recognize the fact that their opponents, like themselves, are thoroughly earnest in purpose and belief, and refrain from reflections upon motives, either by statement or implication. The editors will hold themselves as closely bound as their contributors to the observance of these rules, and shall expect to be called to account for any infraction of them."

The contents occupy thirty-two quarto pages, and a classified index affords easy reference to the several departments and the articles contained therein.

"Shake Well before Using," is the title of a "leading article," by Gilbert O. Fay, of Hartford, Ct. It is upon methods of instruction, which he designates as an "educational recipe," and then proceeds to discuss the question whether or not they can be made to mix together in perfect solution, or must exist in layers side by side. His plea is for co-operation all along the line, so as to develop a blending of effort and resources. "Then we shall hear no more of 'departments,' and 'annexes,' and 'accomplishments,' but only of the 'education of the deaf,' from its foundation stones to its cap." Another article in the same department is by Wm. A. Burt, of Edgewood Park, Pa., and is entitled "A Plan Necessary." It refers especially to practical work in the classroom. Other interesting articles appear under the department heads "Current Educational Literature," "Methods and Devices," "Question Box," "Reviews and Criticisms," "Teachers' Meetings," and "Notes and Comments."

The Church Mission to Deaf-Mutes has recently received, through Mrs. Mulligan, a legacy of $400, from the late Mrs. Caroline Park Strong.

THE RETORT COURTEOUS.

In one of the courts in Boston, the prosecuting counsel happened to leave the court room in the midst of a loud, fiery harangue, by the opposing attorney. His absence was noticed, and when he returned he found himself under fire from his brother attorney, who charged him with seeking to flee from his merited denunciations. Quick as a flash came the reply from the prosecuting attorney: "You should remember that the human ear is a delicate instrument." The other lawyer was struck speechless by this unexpected home thrust, while the audible tones of a general laugh were heard above the hum of the court room.

VIEWS AND COMMENTS.

A competent authority says that a vocabulary of 1000 words is all that is necessary to transact all the ordinary business of this world. Would that the deaf-mutes could acquire it so easily!

A spelling match between Miss Noyes and Mr. Sanders, as the champions of the two rival systems, would be a good idea. To do Mr. Sanders justice, though he is a passed master of the sign language, he rarely uses signs, making it a point to spell out his thoughts in words as much as possible. How tickled Prof. Bell must be at the success of his pupil!

Messrs. Sawyer, Babbitt and Bigelow are talked of as candidates for delegates to the World's Deaf Congress from the Boston Society. Mr. Tillinghast is favored the most, and if he would accept the honor, he could easily have it, as he is considered the best representative of that Society.

A deaf-mute club in the West has been honored with a cash donation from a former teacher, who while earning a salary of $700 a year, "cut out" a deaf-mute Principal by offering to work for $200 less than that deaf-mute's salary, which was $1,200 per annum, with perquisites of $500 to $1,000 more. Perhaps that donation was a part of the "Conscience Fund." If this underhanded cutting of salaries had happened between hearing Principals, what a howl would have gone up in lurid rhetoric from the Institution press.

Prof. Bell has engaged Mr. George Kelly, a pupil of the Horace Mann School, to go to the World's Congress of Teachers and Principals as a show pupil. Mr. Underwood, a well educated graduate of the Northampton Institute, criticizes this appointment as not a fair test of the oral system, because Mr. Kelly lost his hearing at 7 or 8 years of age, and his success could not be wholly ascribed to that system. Mr. Underwood remarked that Miss Bailey, who was exhibited at the Lake George Conference, was a fair sample, for, as far as he knew, she is a congenital, and therefore her command of speech is something phenomenal. He regards her as a white blackbird, and intimates that Mr. Kelly himself does not know in what position he is to pose in Prof. Bell's collection of wonders, but it is fair to think that he is to stand as an example of the success of co-education with the hearing youth of the Chauncey Hall and English High Schools.

It will be seen from the above criticism that the deaf-mutes of whatever school are much more disposed to be fair and just in matters of education than their teachers in either system. As Dr. Peet has prophesied, the time is not far distant when the question of the best system of education will be settled by the deaf themselves. The first effort in this direction is plainly discernible in the deaf-mute press, which, as time goes on, is destined to wield greater power and influence, besides raising up a class of thinking, reasoning men.

Mr. Underwood is an artist by profession, his specialty being the flowers of the field. When a New York firm advertised for an artist who had a thorough knowledge of floral designs, and requested specimens of the applicants' skill, Mr. Underwood was one of the many who applied for the position, and the only one who got it. The firm entered into a contract with Mr. Underwood for three years as a designer of calico patterns, which are always gaudy, like the lilies of the valley, and Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. The firm has since moved its offices to Boston, and Mr. Underwood came with them. He is a Phonetician of the first rank.

Mr. Holmes, the unfettered, comes out with the announcement that his next Levee will be held on New Year's Day. He will have a much larger attendance on a holiday, and there is no question of his success.

Mr. and Mrs. Reddy, of Newburyport, who so seldom attend public parties, surprised their friends at the Levee by greeting them in person. They came with Mr. and Mrs. McDonough, of Cambridge. They reported that Mrs. Frank C. Davis was unable to be present on account of ill-health. Indeed, like Mrs. George Homer of pleasant memory, she did not appear to be the same person since the death of her respected husband. Those two well-known ladies have suddenly disappeared from the social swim in the Hub.

Patrick Donohue, of Medford, a graduate of an oral school, caused much amusement at the Levee by singing in dulcet (?) strains "Tara-ra boom-de-a-y" in accompaniment to Prof. Jones' thundering hoof-beats and cannon-roar in his declamation of, "Paul Revere's Ride." When donohue remonstrated with, Mr. Donohue said: "Oh, they can't hear!"

The Mutual Benefit and Charitable Relief Society held its regular monthly meeting last Wednesday. It was voted to have a new constitution and by-laws. The matter of incorporation was discussed, and the motion was rejected. The clause in the constitution relating to sick benefits was ordered to be stricken out, and the members fancied that they had got around the law in this way. The rate of assessments were unchanged. The change of title was rejected, because, as one member claimed, with more truth than honor, there would be a serious falling off in the receipts if no charity parties were given by the Mutual Benefit Order. So, it is undisguised hypocrisy, and the object is to put money into your own pockets under the pretense of helping the poor, the sick and the holy temple, which ye profane, ye money-changers!

The correspondents have held a solemn convocation, and as there was no solemn bandy, even the good and pious correspondent of the Silent World having forgotten to bring his pocket-bible along, the pencil pushers kissed their Fibers and swore by the eternal not to recognize any future benefit parties of that society until Mrs. Charitable Relief has been divorced from Mr. Mutual Benefit. They do not propose to be parties to a fraud like that. If the society wishes to give notice of their future entertainments, they will have to apply to the editors for advertising rates. The correspondents will not touch them under any circumstances. Even the Grand Begum of the Boston Society has dropped all mention of their society like a hot potato from his weekly advertisement of the meetings. To pocket two-thirds of the proceeds of charity parties is rank robbery.

It is now in order for a Band of Mercy to organize a Charitable Society from which the men should be sternly excluded, but allowed to contribute as much as they wish each month for the benefit of the poor. Such a society would certainly meet with a generous reception in Boston.

"Alas for the rarity of Christian charity under the sun!"

The Mutual Benefit Society is a good training school for lawyers and financiers, if not for philanthropists.

The World's Fair Club, which sails under its true colors, will have a rousing success at its party in Alpha Hall, on Essex Street, on the evening of St. Patrick's Day, March 17th. Frank W. Bigelow, one of the Committee, says that a dime admission will be charged, that refreshments will be furnished for the party, and that an auction sale of the ladies will be held for partners to the lunch.

MATTERS EPISCOPAL.

Miss McClelland and Mr. Frank Roberts, who were baptized by Rev. Mr. Searing recently, will be confirmed, with Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Small, on April 18th, by Bishop Jaggard, of the Southeastern Ohio.

Rev. Mr. Searing denies that his interest in the deaf-mute mission is waning. He says that, on the contrary, it is deeper than ever, but the reason why he proposes to preach in the morning to another congregation, and hold services for the deaf communicants, is that the work is not large enough for him, and he does not want to waste his energies in idleness. On this point, he writes: "My object in asking Messrs. Frisbee and Tufts to take the service, is that they may become thoroughly familiar with it, so that in any necessary absence at any time, the service may be rendered properly and understandingly. I have thought possibly it would be more convenient for the deaf, particularly for those living at a distance, to have our Sunday services in the afternoon, in which case my mornings and evenings could be profitably given to a hearing parish, should such an arrangement be effected, there certainly would be no less interest on the part of the pastor, and no fewer services rendered. I have said (and I feel so now) that I would accept no parish that objected to my carrying on the deaf-mute work, for my heart yearns for those who cannot worship, understandingly, with their hearing brethren, and I rejoice that it is my privilege to minister and preach to such in their own language."

In referring to the Home, he says: "I have not lost my interest in the Home for Deaf-Mutes, but on second thought have considered it wise that the management of the project be left with the deaf themselves." The communicants of St. Andrew's Church Mission will be glad to hear this explanation from their pastor. They would regret losing the services of an intelligent pastor. Rev. Mr. Searing explains that Mr. Tufts only has been asked to lead the responses, and that he has not been appointed as a future lay reader. The fact is, New England has no deaf-mute minister equal in intelligence to Rev. J. H. Coud, of Missouri, to Rev. J. M. Koehler, of Pennsylvania, or the late Henry Winter Syle, and the Bostonians would welcome Harry Van Allen, of Philadelphia, who is at present preparing for holy orders. Both Messrs. Coud and Van Allen are college graduates, and as such competent to instruct their fellows. Hope Mr. Van Allen can be induced to come and settle down in Boston. He will find plenty to do.

Rev. Mr. Searing is well-known in Boston as a musical instructor of rare ability, and his friends have told him that he was wasting the sweetness of his voice on the desert air, or ear.

Miss Alice C. Jennings, of Auburn-dale, has lately been baptized into the Episcopal Church. The reason is that semi-mutes, or even the mute, can join the congregation in the prayers and responses or hymns, which is not the case in other churches. Is it any wonder that the Episcopal Church has such a charm for the deaf?

The members of St. Andrew's Hall are slow to catch up with the formulae of the church service. What they need is a few leaders in the responses. Then it would be a pretty sight to see the whole congregation in the act of prayer, or taking up the hymns in concert, instead of sitting like so many uninteresting statues during the service.

From a member of the family of Bishop Tuttle, of Missouri, we learn that Rev. J. H. Coud and his charming bride were the recipients of much attention, and made a favorable impression at a reception of clergymen of the diocese, at the Bishop's house in St. Louis, some time ago. From the Church News, edited by our correspondent, Rev. Mr. Miller, we glean the following account of Rev. Mr. Coud's notable ordination for the priesthood:

ORDINATION OF THE REV. JAMES H. CLOUD.

The ordination to the priesthood of Mr. Cloud, a deaf-mute, at the Cathedral, was an event of unusual interest, and the first of the kind that had taken place in the West. There were present in the chancel beside the clergy of the Cathedral, Rev. A. W. Mann, who has charge of the deaf-mute work in the Western States, and Rev. J. M. Koehler, of Reading, Pa. In the congregation were about seventy-five deaf-mutes. After the sermon the bishop came down to the choir steps and made a short address to the candidate and his people, which was interpreted in the sign language by Mr. Mann. The hopeful and encouraging words of the bishop, with their tender and sympathetic spirit, and the eager attention of those who heard with their eyes, made a pathetic scene not soon to be forgotten. In the ordination service the candidate was able to answer the questions in an audible voice, as they were pointed out to him when read by the bishop.

Mr. Cloud has been in deacon's orders about two years, and is principal of the deaf-mute public school of this city. While fulfilling the duties of this exacting position he has prepared for his examinations for priest's orders, and at the same time faithfully carried on the work of St. Thomas' mission among the deaf-mutes of St. Louis. The readiness and accuracy of his knowledge and answers when passing the canonical examinations were a delight to the examining chaplains. Both in scholarship, gentleness and firmness of character, and fidelity to duty, Mr. Cloud is well qualified for the interesting work in which he is engaged.

HERE AND THERE.

Mr. Wm. Lane, of Waltham, and Mr. Albert A. Small, of Belmont, have secured steady jobs in a carpenter shop in Brookline, and they are thinking of moving their families out to Allston or Brighton, so as to be nearer to their work and not get up at such unearthly hours in the morning.

Mr. Hansen thoughtlessly hid himself away to the Worcester Levee without asking leave from his foreman, and he got leave to stay out permanently. He is now looking for another job.

Mr. Henry Acheson, who is an all-round printer, being familiar with almost every kind of work in printing and publishing offices, has just been appointed foreman of the blocking or finishing department of Peters & Sons, the well-known Typesetters and Electrotypers of Boston. Most of the electrotyping work on the Youth's Companion is done under his supervision. Mr. Acheson learned the printing trade in Canada, before he came to Boston, and his progress in the various departments has been very rapid. He is still a young man and unmarried.

Mr. Lannon happened, one day, to be standing near a pile of street sweepings on a corner, when his attention was caught by a roll of bills. He dived down for them, and found two crisp twenty-dollar bills all soiled, but still good value. He pocketed the bills and made himself scarce in that neighborhood.

Rev. Samuel Rowe has left his old home at West Buxford, and moved to Lynn. He is now looking for work in Boston. Any one who could help him to a job would be doing a good service to a worthy man.

Mr. Connors, who works in a jewelry store at Mansfield, has been off on a vacation since the first week of February.

Mr. Henry Acheson comes from an interesting family. Of fourteen brothers, who emigrated to America, many years ago, five were deaf-mutes, and nine hearing. One married a congenitally deaf daughter of the venerable Mr. Marsh, and as a result, all their five children are deaf; the second also married a congenital deaf-mute, but had five deaf-mute children. Henry's father was one of the hearing brothers, who settled down in Canada, and married a hearing lady. If intermarriage among the deaf is the sole cause of hereditary deafness, as Prof. Bell claims, how did it happen that Henry's parents, who could hear, produced deaf-mute children? Evidently Prof. Bell's theory does not always hold good. On the other hand, Mr. Marsh's second daughter, also a congenital, married a non-congenital, and all their children can hear perfectly, and the sons are rising young men in the real estate business in Chicago to-day. The deaf-mutes' own theory that the intermarriage of congenitals is sure to produce hereditary deafness, while the marriage of a congenital and a non-congenital is certain to break off the chain of heredity, is proved in every instance to be the correct one. The origin of deafness in the Acheson family is unknown even to themselves.

COLLEGE CHRONICLE.

Annual Gymnastic Exhibition.

AN EXCELLENT PROGRAM WELL RENDERED.

The News in Brief.

From our College Correspondent.

With the exception of the Tenth Annual Gymnastic exhibition which occurred Friday evening, very little of interest has transpired during the past week. The exhibition was, by long odds, one of the best and most successful of any that have yet been given, and pleased the spectators very much.

These affairs usually occur about the last of February, but, as a general thing, the weather at that time is intensely cold, and, owing to the difficulty in heating the gymnasium the spectators usually experience considerable discomfort. For this reason, the date set for this year's exhibition was nearly a month later than the usual time, and it was confidently believed that those who came to witness the evening's exercises would have no need of shawls and overcoats. But "the best laid plans o' mice and men" sometimes result contrary to what they should, and, in this instance, those who had counted on warm weather found that their expectations had "gone awry" indeed, for the night was extremely chilly and kept away fully one-half of those who would, otherwise, have attended. Although the crowd was so small, not over fifty being present, the programme was carried out to the letter and, being extremely well done, elicited a great deal of applause.

The exercises opened with the "setting-up drill" by the second division, led by Ryan, '94. This division is composed solely and wholly of the Introductory Class, and the drill is, in accordance with the graded system of physical culture which Instructor Adams has so nearly brought to perfection, intended as a basis for future training. It is a series of calisthenic movements, bringing into play almost all the muscles of the entire body, and besides being of great value on this account, is also an unusually graceful and beautiful drill—one that pleases all who witness it. Ninety-seven went through it without a hitch. Following this came an exhibition of high jumping by Grimm, Dudeney, Wagner, and Lewis, '96, and Bowen, '97. The cord was raised inch by inch, and the contestants dropped out one by one until only Wagner was left. He cleared the cord at about shoulder height. Brennan, '96, then gave an exhibition of fancy dancing. The floor of the gymnasium was still damp from the scrubbing it had received in the afternoon, and made it difficult to execute the steps. There was no sand at hand to sprinkle around, so the "mazy" soon came to a close. Side vaulting came next. The horse was brought out, and Rives, '93, Howard, Williams, Cowan, and Peter, '95, gave a remarkably good display of their skill. Club swinging by a class of sixteen, led by Rives, '93, followed. A number of difficult movements were gone through with an ease and grace which proved that the class was very well drilled. A rousing set-to between Hubbard and Sullivan, '96, two of the best light-weights in the college, closed the first half of the programme. Two rounds of two minutes each were sparred, both marked by vigorous work. This was doubtless the most enjoyable feature of the evening.

Part second began with the old dumb-bell drill by the first division, composed of the four upper classes, led by Rives, '93. Instructor Adams has so modified this drill, dropping all unnecessary movements and substituting others of greater desirability, that it now forms one of the most important and valuable exercises of all that are taught in the gymnasium. This was followed by vaulting for height, by Rives, '93, Howard, '95, Wagner, '96, and Bowen, '97. They performed some remarkably difficult feats, and, especially, winning much applause. Fancy Club swinging by Rives, '93, Sheridan, '94, and Sahlborg, '97, came next. They went through a series of very beautiful movements, many being extremely intricate. This, too, was an unusually good feature. The horse was again brought out and Hosteman, and Rives, '93, Howard and Cowan, '95, a second time gave a display of vaulting, taking the horse lengthwise this time. While all did well, Howard distinguished himself by several feats little short of wonderful. Professor Maurice A. Joyce, Instructor in Gymnastics of the Washington Light Infantry Corps, followed with a very good contortion act, supplemented by various other feats and closing with leaping, tumbling and jumping. In this he was assisted by the Kettler brothers, two little fellows of eight and twelve years. The girls up in the gallery declared them to be "just as sweet and cute as could be." Many of their tricks were extremely difficult, all were highly entertaining and the spectators were loud in their applause at the close. The programme ended with an exhibition of scientific boxing by Instructor Adams and Grimm, '96. They sparred two rounds vigorously, and while the contest was not so exciting as it was expected to be, it pleased all very much. Instructor Adams ranks very high in the District as a boxer and is fast making a master of the manly art.

The programme, this year, was considerably different from what it usually is and the change added greatly to the success of the exhibition. Class work on the chest-weights, etc., has little about it to interest the average spectator and the committee very sensibly, omitted all such features, introducing in their stead others better calculated to amuse the spectators. Credit is due the committee who had the matter in charge for the painstaking care, with which the programme was arranged. A better one could hardly have been devised.

The monthly business meeting of the Literary Society was held Saturday morning. Nothing important was transacted, but a number of minor matters were discussed. The next meeting falls due on the eighth of April, when a new board of officers for the third term will be elected.

Base-ball enthusiasm has reached the high pitch it usually attains at this period of the year. As soon as the damp weather passes off, and the garlie-ground, now nothing but a broad stretch of swampy ooze, take on heavier turf, practice will begin in earnest. Already in fancy one hears the thud of the willow as it sends the pigskin spinning down into centrefield. Fingers will be bent, shins scraped and naughty words bandied back and forth, of course, but this is all right. Without these little attributes, base-ball would not be worth a blank. A challenge has been received from the Princeton second nine, and, as might be expected, Ducks are clamoring for its acceptance. Capt. Ryan, however, has a cool head acquired by years of steady work on the diamond, and will not commit himself as yet; a very sensible thing to do, considering the fact that the team has not yet played a single practice game. Its make-up will doubtless be about what was announced in a former issue of the JOURNAL. Five of the players will make their debut in the Kendall uniform this year. In all probability the team will be the best the college has had during the past five years.

Prof. Draper conducted chapel exercises Sunday. He delivered a very interesting account of the life and death of the late Earl Wilson, a most exemplary young man, the influence of whose life, while here, is still felt.

Kansas City, Mo.

Grand Masquerade Ball given by the Kansas City Club, was a gratifying success. Kansas City deaf-mutes had a frolic last night under the auspices of the local deaf-mute club. Sixty people who never heard "Boom-de-a-y," met together and seemed to enjoy life to the utmost. A number of them came from the Institution for the Deaf, at Olathe, Kan., and many others from towns adjoining Kansas City. It was a full-fledged masquerade ball, with Prof. Rose's orchestra and promoters, and more like a school picnic, although not quite so noisy. It was the first thing of the kind that Kansas City ever saw, and altogether the most unique entertainment given in town this season. The deaf-mutes are supposed to feel the vibrations of the music, and be guided by it. At any rate they danced, and most of them kept fairly good time. They flitted in their own peculiar fashion, and every mute in the room seemed to know what was going on. The masks were unique, and some of them very elaborate. Everything was in charge of the Kansas City Mute Club, and they seemed abundantly able to manage their own affairs. One of the members was stationed at the head of the second floor stairs and pointed out to visitors the way to the dance hall above. The treasurer of the club guarded the outer door. By eight o'clock, the members of the club were in their greatest glee. Mephistopheles and Mother Goose, base-ball players, clowns, princesses, ballet girls and Uncle Sam had arrived, and were introduced to each other with little formality. The visitors who could speak, were in the majority. A few of the mute married ladies had babies with them, whose lungs were sound beyond all question. The grotesque masks frightened them, and their chorus of noise threw the merrymakers into a still greater hilarity. They could not hear it, but by some mental telegraphy which passed the understanding of the uninitiated, they all seemed to know what was going on. The consensus of opinion seemed to be that the mothers should rock the babies, and all over the room the motions which accompanies the lullaby, was taken up by the dancers. It was now nearly nine o'clock, and the introduction of the dancers in the grand march followed thick and fast. Two fingers were lifted in the air by the person making the presentation, there was a simultaneous inclination of two heads, and the offer of an arm which was at once accepted by the young lady. Mephistopheles and Mother Goose headed the procession, and here and there were scattered friends and members of the club who could hear the music and assist in keeping time. The grand march concluded, Mephistopheles, who acted as master of ceremonies, arranged the dancers for the first waltz, for three months in prison.

Waltzing was too fast an amusement for the majority of the masqueraders, but there were several couples who did fairly well, and some who kept perfect time. Mr. Root, the secretary of the club, explained that the deaf-mutes could feel the music, but after it had stopped, two or three couples continued to dance to the great amusement of the others whose attention had been called to the orchestra. Following this waltz was a quadrille, Mephistopheles made a few signs, which interpreted meant get your partners for a quadrille. The only formality used was the extension of the arm by the men, and the young ladies arose with the alacrity of a girl at a summer resort in the ice-cream season. The quadrille proceeded more smoothly than the waltz, but the polka, which followed soon after, was the most successful dance of the evening. The members of the society danced until midnight, and then unmasked. These dances will be a feature of the Kansas City Deaf-Mute Club in the future. There are twenty-five members at present enrolled, but it is expected that within a few months the membership will be increased to sixty. Norman Hunt is the president, and Geo. E. Root, the secretary of the club. Regular weekly meetings are held in their club room at Sixth and Main Streets, every Saturday evening, and the society, which was organized on January 7th, is on the high road to prosperity. The object is to associate all the deaf-mutes in this city and towns immediately adjoining for the purpose of mutual enjoyment.—Kansas City Times.

The year 1893 seems to have made a very auspicious beginning as far as the Kansas City deaf-mutes are concerned.

Our masquerade ball came off last Friday evening, and it was all in all the most pleasant social event of the season, being a gratifying success in every particular. The visiting deaf-mutes present were Mr. John Delaney and Miss Annie Brown, from St. Joe, Mo.; Mr. Ikey Croxton, of La Cygne, Kan.; Mr. Henry Siekle and Edward Funk, from Leavenworth, Kan.; Mr. John E. Woodridge and Miss Oca Lacy, from East Lynne, Mo.; Mr. Levy Bullard and Miss Dora Pride, from Lexington, Mo.; Mr. Oscar Duffield, from Harrisonville, Mo.; Mr. Carl Ward, of Trenton, Mo.; and Mrs. Chas. Ferrell, of Platt City, Mo.; Mrs. Cartwright and Misses Eva Orr and Nellie Pistole, of Olathe, Kan., and Miss Cora Cotterman, from Independence, Mo. All the Kansas City deaf-mutes turned out in full force, and were successful in making the first ball a grand success. The hit of the evening was the fine figure of President Hunt, disguised as a President Cleveland, with his tall silk hat; he sized up like a lord in disguise, and was the observed of all observers.

Joe Voelcher was the clown, and acted his part with a vim to the annoyance of some of the girls; his make-up was perfect.

Mr. John F. Smith wore the insignia of a Fifth Ward tough, and took the part so well that we are thinking of running him for alderman at the next election.

Ross P. Sutton was smoother than silk in his fur-trimmed polo suit.

John Sterrett, as an oriental prince, seemed to be popular with the ladies.

Mr. Fred D. Ellmaker was a base-ball player, but could not face the crowd as a floor manager.

Miss Mary Kelly impersonated little Red Riding Hood.

Mrs. John Smith looked very becoming as a princess, and Miss Dora Pride was well got up as Mother Goose.

Miss Mary Fritz was strictly in it as a sailor girl, while "Prince" managed to get into Mephistopheles costume in time for the grand march.

The best of feelings prevailed throughout the entire evening, and everybody present enjoyed the first ball ever given in this mute community. The ball lasted until 4 a.m., when the visiting deaf-mutes were escorted to the homes of our members. The writer had the honor to entertain Mr. Delaney and Miss Annie Brown, of St. Joseph, and they spoke of the club in very complimentary terms.

Mr. Wm. Cowley has departed from our midst upon a prolonged hunting trip in the Rocky Mountains. He will remain there the greater part of the coming summer.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 2, '93.

THE DUMB SPEAK.

A BEGGING ENGRAVER COMPLAINED OF THE COLD AND WAS SENT TO JAIL.

Paul Weaver French, an engraver without a home, was entirely deaf and dumb till he felt the cold air this morning on his way to the Tombs Police Court. Yesterday persons on Spring Street beheld a shivering mortal squatting on the curb with an extended and dirty palm. Round his neck a board hung; on it, painted in red, was "Deaf and Dumb; pity me." As it was cold the people had showered cents, and $1.25 was taken from him at the station, whither he had accompanied Officer Cassidy.

Sergeant Moloney pitied the poor deaf and dumb creature. The conversation was carried on with slips of paper and a blue pencil. He was given a bed at the station, and started out for the court after breakfast. At that hour the cold was sharp, and a chilling wind blew words to the mouth of the dumb. He complained of the cold, and will now be sheltered the dancers for the first waltz, for three months in prison.

A Variety of Notes.

PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE.

(From New York Correspondent.)

A meeting of the committee entrusted with the Manhattan Literary Association's finances was held on Thursday evening. Their report will show the Association to be in sound condition.

Fanwood Quad Club's interests were looked after by the picnic committee. They convened on Saturday night, and discussed the plan and scope of the event to transpire on June 17th. Indications point to several novelties being introduced to while away the afternoon. Tickets for the picnic will be issued about the first of April.

It looks as if the Xavier Club (deaf-mutes) will discard their intention of holding an Easter reception. The club is preparing for a gala time from April 10th to 15th. The club house will be thrown open to the members and their guests, and besides an art loan exhibition, many other interesting features will be presented. The deaf-mute members are for fixing on a certain night to entertain their deaf-mute friends, and between the dates above mentioned.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dunlap will shortly celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of their marriage. They will tender a reception to their hearing friends. Following that, they will extend the same courtesy to their deaf-mute friends.

Prospects for an outing in aid of the Gallaudet Home are particularly bright. Mr. Wm. G. Jones will assume the responsibilities of arranging for the affair. His assistants on the Committee have already been chosen, and it goes without saying, with Mr. Jones at the wheel, the craft and all aboard will find pleasant sailing.

Preparations for the Annual Fair in aid of the Home are going along quietly, but just the same, vigorously. The ladies are busy with their work, and the planning speaks well for a fine display.

Some comment has been made on the closeness of dates between the Home Fair and the fair to be held in Brooklyn. Possibly no harm can result to either. It would seem to be wise, however, for those in authority to fix on dates a good ways apart.

Although there is a jury in session, trying to decide on the troubles of the German Club that was, this does not prevent the formation of another German organization, which is said to have had its inception a week ago. Post-office Persenheim is reputed the presiding genius, and they have arranged a programme for the entertainment of the German delegates to Chicago on their arrival in the metropolis.

The late Charity and Aid Society had formulated a programme with the same intention. In fact, the programme was published in a German paper for deaf-mutes, and excited some active preparations among the class, according to several articles that appeared in the same issue of the paper.

Vice-President Thomas Grogan, of the Xavier Club, will size up the World's Fair and Chicago for a period of two months during the summer. He goes along with his brother, who superintends Armour's interests in this city.

The Power Post-Office candidacy boom received a set-back during the week, by the popping up of a Mr. Smith. In consequence, there is a contraction discernible in the brows of those who had their thoughts fixed on possible sinecures in the P. O. employ.

If our intention had been to notify Mr. Joseph Yankauer of the fact he had been "expelled" from the Union League Club, we would have used that word instead of "dropped from the roll." It is a long time since we went to school, but if our memory holds good, the definition for both will equal the term, "kicked out." As to the other correction, all that remains to be said is, we are in the habit of placing implicit confidence in reports we receive from members of the Union League, the source from which that one emanated.

Benny Elkins, a near neighbor of Mr. James Russel, has placed his services at Piser & Russel's disposal, and is now learning to sling type and "kick" in their printing establishment.

The youth of the city who put up more than necessary in an effort to get rich too quick, has cause to congratulate himself. Efforts are being made to remove the temptation from his path. Byrnes and his men are on the track of the pool rooms.

Richard McDonald has invented a puzzling little snuff box, made out of wood. It has the form of a carpenter's jackplane. The snuff-pincher can pass the box around among his friends, inviting them to take a pinch. To do that is easy enough, but to open McDonald's little box is something else.

MONTAGUE TIGG.

MARYLAND.

"Harry W" the regular correspondent, has been very busy for the past week. In order to keep the readers of the DEAF-MUTES' JOURNAL posted as to what is going on here, he asked the writer to chronicle the news of the week in his stead.

Mr. Robert Hollenshade and Miss Amelia Stutsky were married on Tuesday, February 28th, in this city. Robert is a brother to Mr. William Hollenshade, who is a deaf-mute. Mr. and Mrs. Hollenshade will take up their residence in Monkton, Md.

The blizzard of Saturday last was one of the most disagreeable experienced here in a long time. Snow fell to the depth of several inches and drifted badly in places. The bad weather of that day was a great disappointment to many deaf-mutes, who expected to attend the Inauguration, but the deaf-mutes were well represented in Washington, D. C., notwithstanding.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Boss were called to New York to attend the funeral of Mrs. Boss's father. At this writing, I do not know if they have returned home.

Mr. A. C. Buxton, of Crisfield, Md., en route to the inauguration, stopped in this city in order to have something of the Monumental City, and had nothing but a jolly time in chatting with the deaf-mutes. Though he is out of the city, he is one of the active members of the Baltimore Society.

Mr. Theo. Fowble, of Maple Grove, Carroll Co., came here last week, en route to the inauguration, and may come back to stay with his brother John, who is a deaf-mute, too. He reported to the writer a boss time. He has gone home. John works with "Harry W" in Mr. Terrell's Shoe Shop.

Mr. Harris is not hereabouts as of old. It is believed he is out of the city.

Mr. D. E. Moylan, at our recent business meeting, resigned as a member of the Baltimore Society. This was, of course, unexpected. Though he is our lay-reader; he is not a willing worker for the welfare of the society, and we could not account for his action, because he gave no reasons at all. However, it was accepted.

Mr. Geo. Leitner received a letter from Manager Earle, of the Birmingham Baseball Club in the Southern League, asking him for terms. George answered it, and soon he got another letter from Mr. Earle, telling him that his salary notion is very high. George says he will not go there. He was recommended to Manager Earle by Manager Hanlon, of the Baltimore Ball Club. He will play in the City League this summer.

It is said that Miss Maggie Schuman is going away some time this month. Where her destination will be is not known among the mates of this city.

Your scribe got a letter from Mrs. C. H. Wilson, nee Miss Dick. She says she is going to subscribe for the JOURNAL.

Mr. J. Brandliek is the leading mute of the Monumental City, well known and popular, commands much influence, has a host of friends, and let me add one more, he is a very modest man.

A Literary meeting took place at the hall recently. The program opened with four interesting stories by Messrs. Ramsay, Knoechel and Leitner and Miss Schuman. The subject of the debate was: "Resolved, That milk is more useful than salt." It was not a satisfactory discussion, though one or two did well and the other purposely wandered from the subject, to create a joke among the audience. The victory was awarded to the negative side, participated in by Mr. Briscoe and Miss O'Neil, and while the affirmative side had for her supporters, Mr. Mooney and Miss Wicks.

Next on the programme was a dialogue rendered by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Unsworth, entitled "A Sailor and a Lady." It was a good one, but we thought it would have made a more pleasant impression if two or more of the questions had modestly stepped aside. The recitation of the poem, "On that Day," by Mr. Brandliek, was the last thing in the programme. It was a most fitting close to the entertainment. The rest of the evening was spent on social enjoyment, which was of an exceedingly pleasant nature.

Owing to a misunderstanding, Harry W., reported in the JOURNAL sometime ago, that Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hewitt's baby died. That was true. Fred requested the writer to make it known among his friends of Philadelphia and New York, that his child is living. It is very well, and as lively as a cricket.

People in this city have lost all faith in the ground-hog as a weather prophet. Since he came on the 2d of February, and failed to find his shadow, we have had nothing but the most miserable kind of weather, and our supply of mud confines us in doors.

The baseball cranks of the deaf-mutes are talking about organizing a nine and challenging out of town nines for glory and guarantees. It likely will consist of Messrs. Benson, Leitner, Miles, Lurman, Knoechel, Bombert, Harris, and several other players.

To our Washington correspondent: Suppose we send you a challenge to play the Kendalls sometime this spring. We have a crack battery, strong enough to "wallop" the Kendall Base Ball Club.

VIRGINIA.

Heirs to Sixteen Million Dollars.

DEATH OF CAPT. A. D. PAYNE.

Virginia's Colony in Arkansas Well Satisfied.

PERSONAL POINTS PENNED BY "RITTER."

(From our Virginia Correspondent.)

Every deaf-mute who happens to "strike" Staunton at one time or another generally gets acquainted with Mr. Amos Holler, or "Santa Claus" Holler, as he has been familiarly known to pupils of the Institution for the past fifteen or twenty years. He is foreman of the shoe shop of the Institution, and a more jocular fellow could not be found on the face of the globe. If President Cleveland should appoint a committee to look for a fellow to help him shake hands, and crack jokes for the entertainment of a crowd of office-seekers, they would be obliged to stop at Amos, and hustle him off to Washington.

But Mr. Holler is not anxious to leave Virginia just at present. He has received information that he is one of six heirs to the cool, snug fortune of sixteen million dollars now lying in Germany ready for the claimants to seize.

This gratifying piece of news came to Mr. Holler, a week or ten days ago. But he retains enough modesty to still have his doubts as to the amount of the fortune. His ancestors were Germans, and emigrated to America just when Amos does not know. A slick lawyer has generously (?) tendered his services to the six heirs in assisting them in getting the sum across the Big Pond for the modest consideration of 5 per cent of the entire amount—and to cap the climax, this protector of "American rights," proposes to give no security, while handling the cash for his clients. But Amos has "smelt a rat," as some people put it, and declines this generous proposition. He prefers a man, who lays no claim to being a "fair specimen of the American hog," and who can give security while handling the fortune for his clients.

It is expected that the money will reach Washington inside of sixty days, unless some unforeseen calamity occurs. Among the other heirs is Mrs. Noah Clem, mother of Alexander Lewis Clem, and Miss Eva Clem, both deaf-mutes. Alex is known to most everybody, as the "Great Nimrod," and is quite skillful in handling the musket and pole.

ALEXANDER DIXON PAYNE.

News reached the Institution Wednesday, by means of a telegram, of the death that morning at his residence at Warrenton, Fauquier County, Va. Captain Payne was a member of the Board of Directors of the Institution, having been such since the 15th of April, 1889, and in that capacity became acquainted with many deaf-mutes, who will regret sincerely to hear of his death. He was fifty-six years old at the time of his death, and during the Civil War was commander of the Black Horse Cavalry, well-known as a gallant and dashing body of men, rivaling Colonel John S. Mosby's famous command. Captain Payne leaves a wife, a son and four daughters to mourn their loss. He leaves a fortune estimated at two hundred thousand dollars.

An incident that is not generally known to his deaf friends, occurred some time after the war. He became involved in a quarrel with Colonel John S. Mosby about the latter's attitude in supporting General Grant for the Presidency. The result was that Colonel Mosby sent a challenge to the Captain, who repaired to the field of honor early on the morning set for the duel, but Mosby failed to show up—having been arrested by an officer. The matter was finally adjudged to the satisfaction of both parties.

The remains of Captain Payne were laid to rest Friday morning, in the cemetery near his home.

NEWS NOTES.

Captain Doyle went to Richmond Thursday, and returned Friday.

Examinations have ceased in the deaf-mute department for the present. But will begin again on the 1st of May.

William F. Huff, well-known to the traveling public generally, was married at Atlanta, Ga., to Miss Georgie Speers on Thursday, March 2d. He and bride arrived in Staunton Sunday evening of last week, and are now at New Hope, ten miles distant from this city, the home of Mr. Huff's parents.

Mrs. H. A. Bear has returned home from Philadelphia.

The information, which has been spread out over Virginia that Prof. Yates and Mr. Michaels are dissatisfied with their Arkansas home, is unfounded and uncalled for. Mr. Michaels writes to this correspondent that the entire Virginia colony in Arkansas are very much satisfied with their new home and the people generally, and that any rumors to the contrary are falsehoods circulated by certain persons, who "live to be contrary."

All arrangements have at last been made for starting out Virginia's new missionary, Mr. Berkeley. He expects to hold services in Richmond next Sunday.

The first robin red-breast of the season made its appearance last Thursday afternoon on the Institution lawn, a favorable indication of approaching spring.

Mr. J. H. Heeke, one of Richmond's deaf-mutes, "took in" the inauguration in Washington on the 4th instant. This cor. had packed his satchel and was about to go on the excursion, but just then a heavy rain and snow-storm set in, and he decided to give up the trip to the Nation's Capital.

RITTER.

STAUNTON, VA., March 13.

BALTIMORE.

The writer has received information that Daniel Webster, of Cambridge, this State and a former pupil of the Maryland School, ran away from his home, taking with him his father's best horse and dayton. His father instituted a thorough search for him, but he has not been caught up to date.

Miss Emma Hare is expecting a prolonged visit from Mrs. Dashiell, of Hagerstown. She has many friends here, and they are anxious to meet her once more. Mrs. Dashiell's maiden name was Amanda Karnes, a graduate of the Columbia School at Washington. Her late husband, also of the same school, committed suicide by cutting his throat from ear to ear, because of financial trouble.

Mr. Joe Linton, an enthusiastic admirer of baby Ruth's Daddy, passed through this city from the inauguration en route for home. Joe boasts of having met and shaken hands with the "man of destiny." A good number of our boys were there, and report a good time despite the snow and chilly weather.

Mr. James O. Amoss again travels, via the B. & O., to and from Washington, his old love. The trains on the other road were most always behind time, hence the change of routes.

Mr. Gustave Thies is lying critically ill at his home, and is being attended by a doctor. We hope we will speedily recover.

The members of the Columbian Club will give a grand reception to their friends on Easter Monday. All deaf-mutes are cordially invited to be present, as this will be its last jollification meeting. A handsome marbled clock with a bronze ornament will be raffled off at the nominal sum of 10 cents a chance.

Mrs. Mollie Smith gave a pretty little party in honor of her youngest son's second birthday, last Sunday evening, March 12th. Cakes and refreshments were served. Among those present were Misses Spencer, Turner, and Mr. and Mrs. Brandliek and child.

Mr. Theodore Fowble, after attending the inauguration, spent a few days with his brother, John, in this city. He went home on Tuesday evening last.

Mr. Geo. Leitner, who is considered to be a first class all-around baseball here, received a tempting offer from the Birmingham, Ala., team, to sign and play with them. He has not definitely made up his mind to go yet.

Miss Christie Ludolph's mother is dead. She passed away peacefully two weeks ago. Miss Christie is now left an orphan, her father having died a long time ago. We sympathize with her in her sad loss.

A very enjoyable birthday party was tendered to Mr. Chas. Pauls, Jr., on his twenty-first anniversary, at the residence of his parents. He received many valuable presents from his friends, also a solid gold watch from his employer, showing that he is held in high esteem. Mr. Pauls' father is the owner of a large restaurant, and does a rushing business, but his son is a first-class cigarmaker. Dancing and games were kept up until late, when all were invited to the dining-room and enjoyed a sumptuous oyster party. It was a very jolly party, and all declared it a great success in every particular. Among those invited were Messrs. John C. Weiss, Geo. A. Werner, Fred. Roth, and others.

Mr. William Kraft, who has been at work in a Philadelphia Shoe factory as an edge-setter for the past year, is home again. He reports business very dull in his line in this city.

H. S. Anderson was confined to his room for the past week suffering with a heavy cold; which he contracted in Washington on March 4th. He is getting well again.

HARRY W.

Julius F. Lang's address is No. 14 Adams Street, Lynn, Mass.

Fort Wendell Park, at Fort George, has been engaged by the Fanwood Quad Club for Saturday, June 17th, 1893, to give an afternoon and evening picnic and festival. Particulars will appear in the next issue of this paper.

By request, the Rev. Dr. Thomas Gallaudet will lecture before the Manhattan Literary Association, Thursday evening, March 23d, at St. Ann's Church, on his "Life and Work." Dr. Gallaudet has spent over seventy years of an eventful life among the deaf. The narrative will be interspersed with interesting stories and anecdotes and will be well worth attending.

The cocoon of a well-fed silkworm, it is said, will often yield a thread 1,000 yards long, and one has been produced which contained 1,295 yards.

Cost of a Day at the World's Fair.

"BOHEME'S" EXPERIENCE AS A PUPIL.

News of the Week.

(From our Chicago Correspondent.)

After having given an approximate estimate of the probable cost of lodgings to the visiting deaf during the fair, I think it may be well to give an idea of how much it will cost to see the fair in all its details. Admission to the grounds will cost 50 cents, and the visitor will be able to see the contents of every one of the fair buildings without paying a cent more if he uses his natural means of locomotion. There will be enough to see, and to spare, and it will take a solid two weeks or a total admission rate of six dollars to fairly fully see the exhibits. At the same time there will be numerous concerns, to whom concessions have been made by the management and for the reason thereof will charge from 25 to 50 cents to see them. They are not given by the Fair management, but by private individuals who came from Java, Constantinople, Samoa, Germany, Ireland and Timbuctoo, with open hands for the tourist's gold. Indeed, it will be cheaper to take coffee a la Java at 25 cents and see how the natives are costumed, etc., than go to Java itself; also with German beer booths, French cafes, Bohemian glass blowers, and numerous fakirs of like ilk. A local paper estimates the probable cost of one day:

Admission ticket.....	$ .50
Lunch.....	.25
Guide book.....	.10
"L" and fare.....	.10
Lagoon ride.....	.10
Roof view.....	.10
Total.....	$1.15

The luncheon can be omitted. A sensible tourist would have a snack put up at a downtown restaurant and buy coffee at the fair, or wash down with water. It comes high to see sideshows, as all circus goers know, and as a rule the sideshows are not worth the prices paid to see them. Granting that a lemonade, a paper of peanuts, and other sweetmeats may be indulged in, the cost of doing the unprecedentedly big show may be put at $1, or even 75 cents a day, which, with the fare to and from the city and the lodgings—supposing, however, that they do not jump up—may make one day's expense $2, or thereabouts. It will depend on the man, rather than the price. Some men, and women can see a great deal more on a dollar than some others can on fifty. It is purely a matter of judgment and taste.

A recent editorial in the JOURNAL brings to my realization the fact that the deaf is being discriminated against in the house of their own friends, and proves that the present trend is toward their gradual displacement. I am sorry that such is the case, not for our class, but for the future pupils in the institutions. In the course of my education at three institutions, I have been under both classes of teachers, and justice to the deaf teachers compels me to admit that I received a more solid and more enduring foundation under their tutelage from the three deaf teachers I was a pupil of, than the six hearing ones taken together—their hearts were in the work, while the others seemed to be in it for the bread and butter. There certainly are some few incompetent deaf teachers, but not half as many proportionally as among the hearing ones. Such experienced educators of the deaf as Dr. Gillett and Dr. Noyes, have always maintained that they have secured the best results by placing beginners under the care of the deaf. I think this action was prompted by the activity of the advocates of the oralism fad, which influences the politicians favorably, because it furnishes places for friends. The oralists seem to have the pull at present. They have forced the College to create a department of fellows. It had to do so, as a matter of self-preservation.

Owing to the failure of the Legislature to make the necessary appropriations, the proposed living exhibit of the deaf educational system at the World's Fair will be abandoned. Prof. Bell may also drop his opposition show at the same place, but it is said that Miss Garret, of Scranton, Pa., will have an oral kindergarten in operation somewhere near the Fair, if not at the Fair itself.

The South side has been experiencing a small edition of the deluge, and gumbos and goloshes could not keep the feet dry. At the Doughertys, Mrs. Dougherty was kept closely confined in the house while "Doug." went to the car on stilts.

The Indiana Contingent has received cards from the committee at Indianapolis, announcing the postponement of the Alumni Reunion, which was to take place this summer, until next year. The Chicago Fair is the cause of this action.

Attempts have been made to establish a branch of the Illinois Institution in or near Chicago, but so far they have achieved no success. A short time ago the apparent forced inactivity of the principal opponent to the project has induced some of the influential mutes to renew their talk. I should think that they ought not to stop at talking, but get a move on themselves. They certainly ought to be a branch institution here or hereabouts, as Cook County (Chicago), and the counties within fifty miles of this place, furnish nearly half the pupils in attendance at Jacksonville, which is some three hundred miles away. Get up, gentlemen, roll up your sleeves, and go to work, or stop the never-ending talk.

The Catholic Society completed its organization by electing John Coughlin, President; Charles Kessler, Vice-President; Miss Gregory, Corresponding Secretary; Moise Changnon, Recording Secretary; John Lee, Treasurer; and William Meade, Sergeant-at-Arms. Rooms were engaged on May Street, West Side, and the day of regular business meetings was fixed on the last Saturday in each month, so as not to conflict with the date of the Pas-a-Pas Club, which is the first Saturday in each month. Chicago is amply big enough to support the three deaf organizations, of which the Pas-a-Pas Club is probably the best known and assuredly the most influential.

Alfred Gronberg, an old time Chicago boy, but at present engaged as a gardener at Elmhurst, paid his old partners a visit Sunday.

A rumor is current here that Dr. Gillett has placed his resignation in the hands of Gov. Altgeld. We believe this rumor is incorrect, since the Governor has nothing to do with Mr. Gillett. It is the trustees who are the proper parties.

The young and giddy portion gathered to the number of forty at the home of Miss Emma Smith, on the North Side, Saturday, and had a royal good time. Cards, dancing and conversation, were indulged in, cakes, beer and other delicacies partaken of, and a pleasurable evening spent. Representatives from Pullman, Kensington and this city, were present.

PHILADELPHIA.

Mr. Joseph Dorfner has translated this following extract from a German newspaper entitled "Philadelphia German Demokrat":

"It is calculated in comparison to the number of inhabitants in the various countries, the percentage of deaf-mutes is as follows: To 100,000 living inhabitants in Holland, the percentage of deaf-mutes is 33.0; Belgium, 43.9; Spain, 45.9; Italy, 53.7; Denmark, 62.0; France, 62.7; Greece, 64.6; United States, 67.5; Portugal, 74.7; Norway, 86.3; Germany (without Prussia), 93.1; Finland, 101.8; Prussian Kingdom, 101.9; Sweden, 102.3; Hungary, 126.3; Austria, 130.7; Switzerland, 245.2. The number of mutes seems to increase with the using of the sea." He says that nothing was said of the percentage of the English mutes.

Last Tuesday evening, after the monthly meeting of the Council of All Souls' Working People's Club, at All Souls' Club Hall, the joint excursion committee met and decided to have a grand annual excursion by the Philadelphia & Reading Rail Road to Atlantic City, Thursday, July 13th. This date is a very appropriate choice, as it will enable representatives from the foreign countries, who may stop here and enjoy the trip with us to the famous watering place before they go to Chicago to attend the International Congress of the Deaf.

Last Thursday evening, the All Souls' Club did not hold its quarterly business meeting, on account of there being no quorum to transact business.

Having heard a sad accident to Mr. Patrick McDonnell, who had his left arm and leg and some ribs broken, by being struck an engine in the northern part of this State a few days ago, every deaf-mute here felt much shocked, and extends his or her sympathy to the poor unfortunate.

Mr. Charles Campbell, whom we have not seen for a long time, came from his home, Chestnut Hill, Pa., and attended the Church and the Bible Class at All Souls' Church yesterday afternoon.

About three or four deaf members of Apollo Deaf-Mute Workingmen's Club will visit the World's Fair at Chicago, next summer.

A few days ago, while Mr. Theodore Natter was walking towards the corner of 13th and Chestnut Streets, he espied an object like a black snake lying on the sidewalk. He feared it would bite him, but after having touched it with his feet, he found it to be a neck boa which some lady had lost.

About thirteen deaf-mutes expect to be confirmed by Bishop Whitaker at All Souls' Church, on Sunday, April 13th.

Next Thursday evening, the 23d inst., Principal Weston Jenkins will lecture before All Souls' Club. Every deaf-mute ought to be present.

Two Deaf-Mutes Wedded.

HELPING THE "HOME" FUND.

More Light Wanted.

(From our Columbus correspondent.)

The class of '92, is doing pretty well, thus far, in the matrimonial business. Early last fall one of the gentler members of the class joined herself for life to the fortunes of a man, and now we have to chronicle the wedding of another member. This took place on the 2d instant, at the home of the bride, in Dayton, Ohio. The contracting parties were Miss Mary A. Wagenitz and Miss Henry J. Galpin. There was a fine wedding dinner and numerous presents. They will reside in Dayton, where the groom has a good paying position in the National Cash Register Factory. Mr. Galpin hails from Pennsylvania, where he received his education in the Philadelphia Institution for the deaf. The many friends of Mrs. Galpin all congratulate her, and will wish her joy in the new embarkment.

The members of the Crandon Club, mostly small boys, are doing their part to increase the "Home Fund." Saturday afternoon they gave an entertainment in the boys' playroom, entitled "The Cannon Ball Express." An admission fee of two cents was charged, and the amount realized for the fund netted $2.51. The club desired the use of the chapel for Saturday evening, March 18th, to give another benefit, but Clonina Society, which seems to think it has a mortgage on the hall, refused to give it up for the purpose. Some of these days the society will find to its sorrow that it isn't in it. We have in our mind an instance or two when, for a like purpose, the members became haughty and imagined they owned the earth.

Work in the bindery is again in full blast, and all the old force with several new additional help are again at work. Miss McRedmond of this city is one of the added ones, and runs one of the stitching machines as cleverly as an old hand. Miss Emma Burrell also arrived Thursday, from an extended visit to her father in the Northern peninsula of Michigan, looking all the better for her long rest.

Principal Patterson, who has for some time past been engaged in preparing a history of the Institution for the World's Fair exhibit, has his task completed. He heaves a sigh of relief now that he can view his work. It was no small undertaking, hemmed in as he is, with looking after the schools and Chronicle at the same time. We feel sure in saying that the history of the Ohio Institution for the Chicago Fair will compare favorably with those of other States. It is being printed at the Institution printing office, and as soon as several cuts of the building and departments, which are now in course of preparation, are completed, the work will be sent to the proper authorities.

Rev. A. W. Mann held a service Monday evening, in the Parish House of Trinity Church. The next morning he conducted chapel exercises in the Institution. He baptized Monday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Rice their two children, and Mr. Edward W. Dean at Waynesville, Ohio. It is likely he will be here again April 15th and 16th, on the occasion of the Bishop's visit. Those who desire to have him baptize their children then, will govern themselves accordingly.

The boys took a turn at ball playing, the first of the year, yesterday afternoon. A person at our elbow remarked to us that it was a sure sign of Spring having returned, and as another sign to strengthen his argument, the fountain had the day previous been cleaned out, refilled and set to playing. Time alone will decide if the foresaid person is a weather prophet of the Wiggins stamp.

What the Institution authorities, and those connected with the house, have been asking and praying for for several years past, is for more and better light. Their petitions seem to be of no avail. Each year the Legislature has turned a deaf ear to their request, on the ground that the State's financial condition demanded retrenchment. But all the same, the legislative halls, where the statesmen do congregate, and pass laws good and bad, have been illuminated with electricity probably to shed light on the doings of these great statesmen, but more likely because they couldn't stand the dim quantity, and obnoxious stench given off, by the gas manufactured at the Penitentiary for the State House and State institutions in the city. The light afforded the pupils in their study-rooms Thursday evening, became so dim that it was impossible for the children to study, hence they were excused for the evening. This would have been an apt occasion to have had a number of members of the Legislature at the Institution, for then they could have been easily convinced that better light was greatly needed.

THAT UNFINISHED CHESS GAME.

The Silentia Club Elects New Officers—Other Notes.

From our Fanwood Correspondent.

Eleven large representatives of the genus Mus were cruelly slaughtered on the boys' play grounds, last Thursday morning. Their subterranean abode, which the melting snow had flooded, was deserted, the rats seeking surface shelter. They were seen and pursued by several boys at recess, who smothered them in the snow.

Owing to a misunderstanding on either side, the Protean-Texas Chess Game (which was begun last Spring and continued till June, at which time both clubs agreed to defer its completion till the Fall) remains unfinished. The Proteans await the ninth move of the Texas Club, and said Club will please apprise them of it by mail. A letter directed to Secretary Hogan, Station M, New York City, can not fail to reach them.

High collars, or more properly, ear-shades, are the rage here just now. Worn about the neck, they extend upward for several inches, obscuring the ears from view, and careening gently downward at the ends. Their effect is fascinating in the extreme. This fad is unaccountable. Perhaps the propagator of it apprehended a sudden elongation of the neck, and thought it best to be prepared for such a direful event. High collars are indispensable to human giraffes.

The Annual Election of Silentia-Club officers occurred in the Library at the meeting last Friday afternoon. The following were elected: Manager, C. Q. Mann; Secretary, R. Zundel; Treasurer, J. Colwell; Captain, J. Gorr; Chairman of the Arrangement Committee, F. Avens; Committee-men, J. Black and W. Kreicheldorf. The Committee undertakes to secure engagements for each successive Saturday from April to June. If it succeeds in its undertaking, there will be plenty of baseball news in this column during the intervening months.

The Proteus Boat-Club met in its office last Friday evening for the first time this Spring. Captain Bowers presided. The minutes of the last regular meeting, which occurred on November 3d, 1892, were read by Secretary Glynn, and ordered filed. Treasurer Hayes gave information on the club finances, and his report was approved. No business of importance was transacted. Adjournment came quickly.

At the Academy of Music on Saturday last, Messrs. B. Smith, J. McEvoy, H. Probst and J. Kiernan witnessed the matinee performance of "Black Crook." They can now account for the popularity of the play. Messrs. J. O'Brien and G. Hamm attended the matinee performance of the Olympic Theatre on the same day. Weber & Field's Company was the attraction.

On Saturday evening last, occurred in the boys' sitting-room a theatrical entertainment of "great" merit. The plot was out of sight, and therefore out of mind. Manager James Avens, a youngster of fourteen, was ostensibly the best actor there. The other aspirants for pantomimic fame were Emil Mayer, Herman Beck, Charles Sanford, John Elfein, John Kaiser, Edward Slinn, and Thomas Dooly.

Prof. Jones conducted the Sunday morning chapel services. His text was: "The folly of the fool is deceit."—Prov. 14:8. He exhorted all to refrain from telling lies, and to speak the truth. "Hallowed be Thy Name," was Principal Currier's text, in the afternoon. The amount of philosophy concealed in those four words astonished the pupils. It is the Principal's intention to unravel all the mysteries of the Lord's Prayer by choosing for his subject each week a clause in said Prayer. He is anxious that all should fully understand what they say to God every day.

Taking advantage of a "lay-off," Composer R. E. Maynard, who has a position in a down-town office, favored Fanwood with his presence on Wednesday afternoon, the 8th.

Miss Mary E. Griswold, a teacher at the Chicago Day School for the Deaf, called here on Wednesday, the 8th inst., and remained several days. An inspection of the various departments afforded her much pleasure and elicited from her many complimentary remarks. On Saturday morning, under the "espionage" of Miss Myra L. Barager, she went down town to see the sights. Of course she found New York immeasurably superior to Chicago in all respects. She is a talented young lady and a valuable acquisition to the day school there.

Mr. Louis Soldwedel, a graduate of Fanwood, was here last Thursday afternoon.

The father of Oscar Wahlstrom visited him on Sunday afternoon. Fred, Spilker's mother came over to see him on the same day, also Chester Isabel's father to see him.

Mr. Frank Turner visited his pretty little sisters on Sunday evening.

Mr. John Van Seggar was here on Monday evening.

Last Saturday afternoon, Prof. Hare returned from Washington, D. C., whither he went some time ago for the benefit of his health.

Work on the 74th Annual Report of the Institution commenced this week.

Messrs. Betts and Halsted, of the Executive Committee, visited the Institution on Tuesday afternoon.

Ranald Douglas photographed all the boys in a group on the front piazza last Tuesday morning. Principal Currier and Prof. Fox, together with the young ladies and gentlemen of the High Class, were also photographed by him. Photographs of both groups will be seen at the World's Fair next summer.

A new nurse has been secured. Her name is Mrs. Margaret L. Adams, and she is a nice looking and polite young lady.

"Still waters run deep." We said so once; we say so again. The Ida Montgomery Circle will give an entertainment at the Harlem Branch Y. M. C. A. Building, on April 15th next.

NORTH CAROLINA.

The General Assembly passed a bill appropriating $70,000 to complete the new school for the Deaf and Dumb at Morganton. Work on it will be resumed as soon as the weather is favorable. When it is completed, it will accommodate 300 pupils. Then the number of the blind will be largely increased, there being applications for admission of a great many of the latter class of unfortunate.

Last February, the 16th, a concert and exhibition was given complimentary to the members of the Legislature by the pupils in the chapel of the Institution. The occasion was greatly enjoyed by the members and all others present, and it reflected much credit on Superintendent Young and his efficient corps of teachers and assistants.

Last February, the 22d, Principal Young gave us a holiday, as it was Washington's birthday, and we were allowed to spend two hours in the evening with the girls, playing games and enjoying ourselves in various ways, and having a pleasant time generally, while we were all assembled together. Principal Young announced that the members of the Legislature had sent him a large quantity of oranges, apples, candies, and other refreshments, with the request that they be distributed to us. We were greatly surprised and delighted, and feel grateful to these kind gentlemen for the treat, which added so much to our enjoyment. We will long remember their kindness.

It is with regret that we announce the death of Mrs. Elizabeth, wife of Robert E. Julian. She died at her residence in Charlotte, N. C., two weeks ago. Her remains were sent to Wilmington, N. C., by rail, and buried. She graduated from this Institution. Her loss will be sadly felt by all. She leaves a kind husband to mourn his loss, who has the sincere sympathy of many friends.

Mr. Albert J. Andrews, known as "Little Andy," came here from Atlanta, Ga., last February, the 28th, to attend his sister Janet's wedding, who was married to Mr. Charles A. Herbert, of Washington, D. C. His many friends here were glad to see him looking well. He went back to Atlanta, Ga., to resume his duties as a clerk in the office of the Richmond & Danville Railroad.

Miss Mary Clark, after spending three days with Miss Mary Knotts, in Lileville, N. C., left for home last week.

A base-ball club was organized here a few weeks ago, with Albert Stockard as Captain, and Prof. J. C. Miller as Manager. They practice playing base-ball now, and will challenge some other clubs in this city to play games next April.

It is learned that there will be two deaf-mute weddings in the State some time in the coming summer.

Mr. V. W. Crawford, a graduate of the Institution, is a printer by trade. He works in Mr. J. D. Kernodle's printing office, in Graham, N. C., and is well satisfied with his wages.

Talk about bargains! It's worth more to know where the right things are kept, at right prices, and sold with proper politeness, than to find the biggest bargain in New York.

Is there another store in New York where money is given back as freely as received?
